Jobseeker – What do I enter as position if I am seeking employment?

Individual Checks · https://workerchecks.com/fr/documents/demandeur-demploi-que-dois-je-indiquer-comme-position-si-je-suis-a-la-recherche-dun-emploi/

If you're a jobseeker applying for a Nationally Coordinated Criminal History Check or another background check through Worker Checks, you'll be asked to provide a Position or Role Title during your application.

What to Enter

If you are not yet employed or applying for work but need a check as part of recruitment, simply enter:

> Position: `Seeking employment`

This clearly tells the system (and any requesting organisation) that you are currently applying for roles rather than already holding a position.

Why This Matters

The Position field helps Worker Checks and the Australian Criminal Intelligence Commission (ACIC) record the purpose of your background check.
Using "Seeking employment" ensures your check is valid for general job-application purposes and not tied to a single employer.

This option is commonly used for:

- Jobseekers registering with recruitment agencies
- Students applying for placements
- Casual or contract workers between roles
- People renewing checks before starting new employment

Example Entry

Field	Example
Position	Seeking employment
Purpose	Employment / Pre-employment screening
Organisation	Self / Individual applicant
